Dina Baker joined Evergreen Audubon as our 2018 Environmental Education Programs Coordinator just in time for our recent Nesting Day at the Nature Center. Originally from Illinois and currently living in Westminster, she brings 14 years of experience as an Environmental Educator having worked at The Grove Nature Center in suburban Chicago; The Chicago Botanic Garden, Denver Botanic Gardens, The San Diego Zoo Safari Park and Denver Zoo. If that's not enough great experience, Dina also comes with a BA in Spanish and a BFA in Art.

She loves learning about nature and spending time outdoors and her greatest passion is being able to share her enthusiasm and knowledge of nature with others. In her free time she enjoys hiking, birding, running and walking her 3 dogs. She also enjoys wildlife photography, drawing, ceramics and playing piano. Dina will help lead our Summer Day Camps and other children's programming this summer and will have regular hours at Evergreen Nature Center.

Speaking of the Nature Center, Dina has already made a mark by creating our new "Home Sweet Home" exhibit about bird nests and Dina's very handy husband, Gerald, has generously jumped in and helped us out by building some of our new exhibit cases. If you haven't met Dina yet, come by the Nature Center, where she will be working most Sundays, and say "Hola!"
